RE: SUBLIMINAL WARFARE

Dear Sir,
I must admit that I read the article "Subliminal Warfare" (Vol.2 #6) with considerable reservation and skepticism, not because I think it is impossible but because I never attributed ELF Magnetic Fields as being capable of mood manipulation. However, I confess that my doubts were removed on reading in Popular Science magazine (Dec 1991), a feature article questioning the possibility whether "EMFs Cause Cancer?" The proof uncovered so far is convincing - so if EMFs can cause cancer, surely it can control minds. If there are any non-believers still out there, I suggest they read the forementioned article and then re-read "Subliminal Warfare". You maybe surprised by the similarities you will find. Yours faithfully, - a believer - U. Chand. Brisbane Qld.

RE: LINK UP SERVICE

Dear Duncan,
I enjoy reading your magazine tremendously. Is it by any chance possible to have a special "Link Up" service in your magazine as in the the NSW Southern Crossings Magazine? This is not a dating service, but enables readers to connect up with like-minded "searchers" in their areas to communicate either by letter, phone or get-togethers. I am an Aries (3/4/51) who would love friends with similar interests who also seeks to understand the meaning of life's experiences and help me explore this exciting new world. Please give me some feed back. Regards.

Margot, Golden Beach. Qld.
(Dear Margo, I am happy to provide such a service via Nexus as long as there is enough demand for it. So readers, what do you think?)

RE: CONTENTS REQUEST

Dear Duncan,
Hello. Enclosed is a request for a back issue of Nexus, being issue #2, and a money order for $5.00.

Sorry, but I can't subscribe at the moment (as much as I enjoy reading Nexus) as I'm just a poor 'doley' and I can't afford it. ha ha. Nexus is still really great, but if I may, I have one tiny criticism (constructive of course): The stories are good quality, however I think the content is less mystical and 'hippy' than it was before. How about venturing more into Wicca, Shamanism and the Occult. You dig? I loved the "Venturing into Nature" Stories. No offence man; I'm only expressing what I think folks who read Nexus would be interested in. Well thanxs for your attention. Bye. I'd love a reply to see what you reckon. Warmest wishes.

Kathryn M.

(Dear Kathryn, Thank you for your order and letter. When I took over the magazine we did a survey to determine what people were most keen on reading Nexus for. The results were highly in favour of suppressed information on science, technology, suppressed news, UFOs and the unexplained. I decided to cut loose the "hippy" market for two reasons. 1: There are heaps of magazines and newsletters covering health, occult, new age, environmental and similar issues, but none covering suppressed news and info; and 2: If I did cater to the hippy market I would go broke!)

RE: UNDERGROUND "FACILITIES"

Dear Duncan,
A friend of mine who also received in the mail the material that I am passing on to you, rang me in a state of excitement last Saturday to tell me that some months ago he was with a group of people, most of whom he didn't know, when the conversation got around to the state of the nation, (as it often does nowadays), and speculation regarding the future etc. He said the conversation then drifted into secret facilities, such as Pine Gap, North West Cape etc, when one of the people he didn't know said that a relative of his had been working for some years on a very large facility "way out the back of nowhere, miles from any town". The relative did not have any idea as to its purpose. He said it was a very large complex and surrounded by very high walls, and as the place was riddled with gas pipes he thought it must be for experimenting on some secret fuel or whatever. My friend thinks he said it was in western NSW. The workmen were paid huge salaries and were sworn to secrecy. My friend would not be surprised that this is to become Australia's "Auschwitz". Would you post an "Information Wanted" piece in Nexus regarding this 'facility'? Norman. Nambour, Qld.

(Dear Norm, I am as interested as you are in this. I have received numerous other rumours which maybe other people can clarify, such as a huge underground base at The Stockman's Hall of Fame at Longreach, Qld; an underground tunnel connecting the Cape York Space Station to the Ocean for submarine access; a huge underground complex under the Blue Mountains, running to the Burrigalong Valley and the Warragamba Dam, and much more. Anyone out there throw light on these or other rumoured 'facilities'?)

RE: EARTH GRIDS AND AGRICULTURE

Dear Duncan,
Congratulations on bringing Bruce Cathie and Stan Deyo together in Brisbane - we certainly hope to be there. Last year we put up our first, 1/2 size "Cathie" aerial/grid system in the garden, and have it full of test crops at present. At 6 weeks into the experiment, all is really growing well, especially underground crops! (See his diagrams on pages 156-159 of "Harmonic 695"). Our Sweet Corn passed 12 feet with 12" cobs.. We have been trying to locate Bruce Cathie for a number of years, and would be delighted if you could pass on his address, so we can give him some direct feedback re: crop boosting and crop protection.

(Bruce Cathie's address is published in his books, as: Quark Enterprises, 158 Shaw Rd, Oratia, Auckland. NZ. Ed)

RE: FLUORIDE REGISTER

Dear Duncan,
The National Health & Medical Research Council (NH&MRC) has dismissed claims that certain individuals are allergic to sodium fluoride. Some react from drinking artificially fluoridated water (or products containing such) tablets, gel treatments or fluoride toothpaste. Because water-based products and dried products such as infant formula do not have the presence of NaF declared on the labels, some people may be aware of an allergic reaction but may not be sure of the source. This situation is in contradiction to laws requiring ingredients and food additives to be declared. Certain people have ceased using products with NaF and found their symptoms to quickly disappear; thus proving the source of the allergy. Others were diagnosed as being allergic to NaF by a doctor, or naturopath. Because these cases have been recorded in a rather ad hoc way, or not recorded at all, we feel the need for each state in Australia to compile a central register of victims.

We will record NSW cases on our computer. The address is 182 Lake Road, Port Macquarie, NSW 2444. Professionals honouring patients confidentiality could merely give initials, town and details of problem.

Individuals may indicate whether or not their names can be passed on to the Health Minister, NHMRC or merely recorded on the register.

Anyone with names of other colleagues able to assist?

Thank you for your time.

D & T Mackay, Port Macquarie.
